

Columbia/ Burbank High School Head Volleyball Coach

“In partnership with our community, the Columbia School Districts athletic core business is to provide opportunities and experiences that engage student athletes to persist when experiencing difficulties and feel a sense of accomplishment when they succeed.”

Position:

Columbia School District is seeking High School Head Volleyball coach for the 2010 volleyball season. The head coach will be responsible for the High School program and working with our Middle School coaches in developing cohesiveness throughout the 7-12 programs.

The successful Candidates shall:

- Engage student athletes to persist when experiencing difficulties and feel a sense of accomplishment when they succeed.
- Represent themselves, our school, and our community in a positive fashion, by consistently demonstrating class and sportsmanship before, during, and after competitions.
- Develop integrity expressed in sportsmanship and fair play. Student athletes and coaches are held to the highest standard of conduct as ambassadors for our school district and our community
- Teach student athletes responsibility, discipline, teamwork, effort-reward relationships, commitment, pride, and fun. Participants will be held accountable to individual team expectations and the school district athletic code. These aspects will be held as paramount, even above “winning and losing.”
- First and foremost relay the idea to student athletes to excel both academically and athletically.
- Contain the ability to build ownership, trust, and respect in the student athlete, communicate effectively with the student and parents, and enforce standards equitably when problems arise.
- Have the knowledge, experience, and ability to communicate their expertise, in their sport, to the student athlete.
